June is living a life she never wanted. As a young girl, she was kidnapped and held captive for six months. After her escape, she tried to move on with her life, but she couldn't escape the memories of what she had endured.

Now, years later, June is still haunted by her past. She's afraid to leave her house, and she has panic attacks when she's around strangers. She's also plagued by nightmares and flashbacks of her time in captivity.

One day, June receives a letter that changes everything. The letter is from a man who claims to know what happened to the other girls who were kidnapped with her. June is torn between wanting to know the truth and being afraid of what she might find out.

But June knows that she can't keep living in fear. She needs to confront her past and find out the truth about what happened to her and the other girls.
